EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

COLD chills run down the back of the Democratic party when the colored brother Lynch took his seat in the House. It is a kind of restoration,and not the kind to tickle the Democracy into a broad approving laugh.

WE don't knock members down in the Pennsylvania Legislature, but then we are not so far west as Illinois. It was all about a little matter of redistricting the State in a manner that makes the minority's hair stand on end.

THE masons are laying a few stones on the Washington monument, and hope is again revived, some over sanguine ones believing that it will be nearly finished by the time this nation celebrates its two hundredth anniversary in 1976.

ROSA BONHEUR'S genius has found expression in a new picture, 'The Lion at Home.' The king of beasts, in the prime of his youth, muscular, tawny, with glossy hide and brilliant eyes, couches on dead leafage, his wife reclines at his side, and their cubs gambol near them. It is said that the picture could hold its own beside a Rubens.

DR. MARY WALKER, whose name has these many years been before the public, has been appointed to an official position in the department of the interior. She is a woman of more than ordinary ability and so independent in her ways of expression and manner of giving practical demonstrations to her views in the customs of life as well as in other respects that few are ignorant of her position in society.

No wonder the distinguished Madame Patti recalled her resolutions not to cross the ocean again when Manager Mapleson offers her four thousand four hundred dollars a night for forty nights to appear before an American audience. The contract designates the coming winter months as the time, and the large cities the place. Her reputation insures a crowded attendance no matter where she performs.

FROM the freezing solitudes of the far Arctic regions to the imperial palace in St. Peterburg was a decided and doubtless agreeable change for Lieutenant Danenhower, one of the heroes of the Jeannette expedition. Pleasant as the experiences of the last few days have been to the gallant officer, it is probable that he would feel even happier were he on the shores of the United States and in the bosom of his family. This will come in good time, however.

CONSIDERABLE change has passed over the mind of our arrogant and hypercritical cousins since it was the fashion to ask in London drawing-rooms 'Who reads an American book.' The eloquent comments on Emerson might, indeed, be the expression of home pride, for though the Briton must be first of all censorious he can see that Emerson writes the same language and even strikes the same thought that made Carlyle a force and Miller a memory.

IT appears that the three Emperors of Russia, Germany and Austria now openly acknowledge that they have a private understanding which secures peace between them, which agreement, however, must be of a very recent date, unless we believe that the Russian Czar lately permitted Ignatieff and Skobeleff to venture boldly to do things at their own risk which he was not prepared either to authorize or to prevent. The present announcement secures, beyond the shadow of a doubt, the Austrian power in Bosnia and Herzegovina against all further regular or irregular interference by Russian agents under cover of the Pan Slavic movement.

Jeffersonian Principles.

There has been a vast flood of Democratic oratory about going back to Jeffersonian principles. The public has been left to imagine what those really were. Mr. Tilden wrote several long and recondite letters on the subject, but when he attempted to bring himself down to specifications he dropped naturally into the old fraud yell and gave us a variation of that. The consequence is that there has been a long-felt public want for a correct definition of Jeffersonian principles, and we are happy to announce that this has at last been supplied. An imposing gathering of fifteen Democrats was held recently at Henderson, Tennessee, to elect delgates to the State Convention. They discussed the political situation with great solemnity, and poured forth their souls in a series of resolutions which are worthy of National attention.

The first one opens with this serious and comprehensive declaration: "That we believe the United States should be governed by the Democratic party." We undertake to say that there is not a Democrat in the United States who will hesitate to say that he agrees with that sentiment. The party has been inconsistent in many things, but it has never wavered in its devotion to that primary article of its faith. It is undoubtedly the corner-stone of the Jeffersonian edifice. The next declaration is a little mixed in its syntax, but its meaning is clear and its spirit harmonizes with the opening resolution: "That the great majority of the people of Tennessee are Democrats, and ought to be governed by them." This is not true, but then that trifling flaw will not injure it as a Jeffersonian principle. The next resolution is somewhat long, but the point of it is in the end, wherein the Republican party is denounced as the "cause of all our woes and burdens that are so onerous to bear." There is nothing false about that. If it were not for the Republican party the Democrats would have an uncommonly happy existence, while the "woes and burdens" would be borne by the people.

There are other resolutions, but we have quoted the more important ones. They seem to us to embody the spirit of true Democracy everywhere. It would be easy to reconstruct them into a National platform which could be called "Jeffersonian principles," and could read something like this: "Resolved, That we believe the United States of America should be governed by the Democratic party. That the great majority of the people are Democrats and ought to be governed by Democrats. That if it was not for the Republican party we would do as we pleased. That we are in favor, therefore, of the extermination of the Republican party." That contains all the principles the Democracy has in its possession to-day. There is only one misstatement in it, but the party has made this so often that they would never consent to accept a platform without it. They do not constitute a majority of the people, except when they stifle the voice of the majority in the South, and nobody knows that better than they do. Still we put the plank in the platform to give it a familiar aspect.—N. Y. Tribune.

FROM the bungling way in which executions are managed in this country, is it not time some method was adopted and men selected, as in England and France,to do the work? A few years ago Hangman Marwood, of London, visited this country to witness the way persons were hung in America, but gained no valuable information, as we read that in the execution of Dr. Lamson, he adopted a method of his own. He had a hole dug nine feet deep, and the culprit was not obliged to ascend a scaffold, but the arrangement was such that he was instantly killed. In this country men are strangled and die by slow torture in many instances.

Consistency.

An exchange describes the absurdity and inconsistency of a large class of people in this and other countries in the following apt language:

With the Czar, the Queen of England, Vanderbilts, the Fields and the Goulds at one end of the line, and the Chinese at the other, it would seem that other classes might be reasonably content with their lot. The first are offensive because they have too much power and money—the Chinese because they have too little. The parties of the first part sow not, neither do they spin, yet Solomon in all his glory, etc.; and they are being hunted down because they are alleged extortioners, unjust reaping where they have not sown, and tyrannizing over life, labor, stock and bonds, crowding their poorer competitors into corners and financial holes, and appropriating the fat of the land without recompense. In another sense their crimes are that they spend too liberally. Field put up a costly monument to a British spy when he should have put the money into the Savings Bank, as poor folks do; Vanderbilt spent three millions on a house, which other nabobs and literatuers visit and praise extremely, and then go away with their tongues in their cheeks.

The Chinese are hunted down because, as is alleged, they live like or live on rats—it is a little doubtful which—work hard and faithfully, save their money, don't get drunk, except possibly on opium, and take no interest in caucuses or elections. Their money they send back or take back to China, to help the rest of China over. The sender of the infernal machines to Messrs. Field and Vanderbilt, and the wretch who tried to blackmail Gould awhile ago, would doubtless like a law that would send them out of the country with $25 apiece, and confiscate their fortunes; and they only lack political influence to make their demands about as respectable as those championed by the Pacific Coast Congressmen.

We do not attempt to decide for this class of people which action is the most to be condemned—the attempt to expel the Chinese for their degrading cheapness or the many reprehensible attempts to take the lives of those who spend money with lavish wealth, but would suggest that there must be a decided inconsistency in the motives which lead to such opposite conclusions. So far as our individual lives are concerned the golden mean—neither poverty nor riches—is the safest and best.

AN immense flood of foreign travel seems to have set in even thus early in the season, and already berths have been secured some months ahead. Travel is undoubtedly a good educator, but in this as in many other matters it would be better that it should begin at home. It is just possible that many American tourists may meet in Switzerland, and on the Continent of Europe generally, citizens of the old world who can enlighten them as to the beauties, the grandeur and the marvels of that America in which they have hitherto found so little to admire. If the money annually expended by the "innocents abroad" were to be put in circulation here, it is likely that a healthy stimulus would be given to many native industries. It is true that an American is not a "my lord" while traveling among the canons of Colorado, but he is a sovereign surveying his own dominions, and that ought to compensate for the absence of considerable expensive servility.

IT seems that the appeal for contributions to the fund for the erection of a national monument to President Garfield is being answered in such a gratifying manner that the commission has already received enough to ensure the success of the project. The general esteem in which Mr. Garfield is held by the American people could hardly be more impressively exemplified. He must indeed be well thought of whom the public is willing to honor by erecting a monument to his memory.

THE President has done all that he can do for Fitz John Porter, but Congress hasn't. The country wants to be fair, and it is looking right at Congress.

An Asiatic Tunis.

The brief announcement made in the cable dispatches last week that the French have captured the largest city of Anam after a bombardment of two hours requires some explanation. It is the Tunisan episode repeated on a large scale in Asia. As long ago as last September, reinforcements were sent to Cochin, where the French have had colonial possession since 1861. The avowed object of the expedition was the suppression of piracy in the adjacent coasts. It is to be feared, however, that the Asian pirate was a fictitious disturber of the peace made for the occasion like the African Kroumir. Anam is a populous country, abounding in mineral and agricultural resources. The European colonists have coveted it, and piracy seemed a convenient pretext for acquiring control over it. The bombardment of Ha Noi, the largest city in the Tonquin district, marks the culmination of the campaign, and it is not unlikely the King of Anam, like the Bey of Tunis, may be forced to sign a treaty which will leave him at the mercy of a French President.

Glory is not to be had on "the cheap" in Asia any more than in the South Mediterranean. The conversion of Anam into a tributary State will involve risks of war with China. The sovereign of the Tonquin district has been one of the feudal subjects of the Emperor of China, and the military party at the Court of Pekin will not be inclined to renounce any of the ancient privileges. The Kuldja incident has taught the Chinese that European pretensions can be successfully resisted. It would be a strange coincidence if a policy of greed and adventure should lead to as disastrous results in Anam as in the unfortunate Bey's dominions. The French would find a military movement from Pekin toward Cochin China a very serious demonstration.

THE Salvation Army of England has proved a financial success under the management of "General" Booth, who originated the organization. From the methods adopted, many Christian people are not inclined to look with favor upon these Christian workers, questioning the permanent good that follows. Among a certain class such appliances may benefit, but as a general rule so far their operations in localities where the religious element has church facilities their work appears to disadvantage, belittling the cause, and lowering the grade of piety. When in this country they failed to impress even the lower classes that never come in range of gospel influences, and soon returned to England. If the enterprise pays financially, it is no argument that a moral reformation follows. After all, the old methods set in motion by the apostles and kept in motion ever since are the most serviceable and secure the most permanent good.

THE current report that the Delaware and Maryland peach crop is looking well is to be taken with several grains of trustworthy salt. The necessity of this caution will occur to all those who recollect that ever since 1492 the peach-growers of the States mentioned,in conjunction with their brethren of New Jersey, have rarely allowed the spring to melt into the summer without wringing their hands and declaring that the frost and things had hurt the crop and might compel them to keep the prices up. We earnestly hope that the crop of this year may prove a shining exception to the rule; that it may continue to look well down to and including picking and selling time. In that case peaches will be placed within the reach of the masses,and the growers thereof will grow in the popular esteem.

BLOOD alone can atone for this. Bliss and Ingersoll are colonels, and the lie direct is a declaration of war.

ONE of the most aggravating features of the assassination of Lord Frederick Cavendish is that unreasoning race prejudice has made a victim of the most conspicuous liberal member of a family which for two hundred years has always stood firm in support of the political, religious and social principles for which the Irish people have been contending. The Cavendish family have always stood with the people against the encroachments of the Crown; they have invariably favored liberal political measures in Ireland and the colonies; they have been conspicuous champions of religious liberty and especially of Catholic emancipation; they were foremost in the fight with Earl Grey for reform in 1832, and they have since been identified with every liberal and progressive idea that has appealed to the English and Irish people. The Devonshire estates are managed with the utmost liberality, and as more than sixty thousand acres of the Duke's property lie in Ireland, his son had the strongest personal as well as political reasons for commending to the Irish people the conciliatory policy which he was sent to Dublin to inaugurate. The men who killed Lord Frederick Cavendish would probably take special delight in assassinating Saint Patrick if he should reappear in Ireland on a mission of peace and good-will from the English Government.

SUCH courteous expression as Parnell has given of his present views indicates that the opportunity for reflection given him in Kilmainham Jail was not thrown away. He takes good care to avoid the rowdy-howl over the Government's change of policy that adorns the gutter-snipe press. He is inclined to think that the outrages on the island will cease with the assurance thus frankly given by the Cabinet that it is disposed to deal with Ireland as it would with any other part of the realm. The subject of Parnell's conversation, indeed, is in marked contrast to his former injudicious confidences, and if he maintains the same dignified reserve in Parliament the cause of the Irish people will not again be frittered away by silly outbreaks and undignified wrangles. He is inclined to put the future good behavior of Ireland upon the Ministry,but the world will be apt to hold him and his compatriots guilty, if the old tale of lawlessness and outrages is continued across the Irish Sea.

THE army of tramps have commenced moving for the season when camping out is admissible, and the large cities are relieved, in a measure, of this disreputable, worthless and dangerous class. The language of a contemporary comes in here where it states that, as a class, they now infest the edges of cities, levying bread and meat from the kitchen, selecting hours when the male members of the family are supposed to be absent at their daily business, and grow more insolent when assured that none but woman have charge. They seem to have an organization and work by rule and in concert, and they know who give and refuse; they make themselves familiar with the construction of dwellings, doors and windows, and steadily refuse small jobs of work.

GEORGIA, like New York, is to go through the experience of double Senatorial resignation, if the Washington forecasts are to be trusted. Senator Hill has long been unable to appear in his place, and now it is said his colleague, Senator Brown, finds the duties wearing upon him. Both of these gentlemen have won distinction as legislators—Mr. Hill, indeed, ranks as one of the leaders in the Senate—and it will be no easy matter to find their equals among the known ranks of Georgia politicians. Governor Colquitt will be apt to succeed to one of the vacancies—but though well known as a soldier, he has yet to make his mark in National politics.

GENERAL NOTES.

THE net funded debt of New York on April 30 was $98,603,316.

SIX business houses have been burned in Dennison City, Texas, the loss exceeding the insurance by about $25,000.

ONLY forty-two circuses on the road this summer. Ten more are required to fill out one for every week in the year.

THE coffin used at a Pleasant Ridge (Ohio) funeral was painted red, white, and blue and draped with Union flag.

MAURITIUS up to 1867, when fever broke out, was so healthy as to be an Anglo-Indian sanatorium. Now it is almost as dreaded as Sierra Leone.

SWITZERLAND has had to pass a law to protect its Alpine flower, and the country round London cries for one to save the wild primrose and cowslips.

PROFESSOR VENNOR forgets his terrible attack of rheumatism long enough to predict a cold, wet summer and a frost every month up to September.

THE official records of the Grand Army of the Republic show a membership of 85,000 men all of whom were honorably discharged from the United States service.

GOV. FOSTER thinks the Ohio Republicans will elect fifteen out of twenty-five Congressmen, notwithstanding the temperance question. He doesn't say anything about Arthur.

BOTH the Georgia Senators speak of resigning. Senator Brown is troubled with a lung affection, and Hill has long been an invalid. Governor Colquitt is willing to succeed one of the sick men.

THE Duke of Manchester arrived at New York last week on the Cunard steamer Gallia en route for Manitoba, where a company which he represents intend making large purchases of land.

A hunting car has been recntly placed on the Pennsylvania railroad. It is fitted up with conveniences for sportsmen, dogs and sporting paraphernalia.

Several nights ago a number of ruffians in Clearfield tore up the pavements and porches all over the town, not even passing those belonging to churches.

Charles Allen, one of the oldest residents of Lycoming county, died Monday, aged 91 years. The deceased was the father of Ex-State Senator Robert P. Allen.

Simon Shoemaker, a piano tuner operating in Lackawanna county, has been detected in stealing over thirteen gold watches which were found in his possession.

Smallpox, which was quite alarming not many weeks ago, is giving no more concern to the people of this city. Last week there were but three deaths from this disease.—Phila. Times.

While plowing on Tuesday last Reuben Wallace, in Rye township, Perry county, turned up two large black snakes, and the largest one made at the boy so that he had to call his father to, aid before the reptile was killed.

LEHIGHTON, April 30.—Two brothers named Bennett and a boy named Stoker were poisoned by eating wild parsnips. One of the Bennett boys died in great agony and the other is not expected to recover. Stoker will probably recover.

The encampment of the national guard at Lewistown will begin on Saturday, August 5th, instead of on the 19th, as heretofore announced. This is to avoid competition with the Juniata valley campmeeting which opens on the 16th of August.

M. F. McGowan, a stone mason employed on the railroad near Connellsville, was run over and instantly killed by a Uniontown work train on the Southwest Road at eight o'clock Monday evening. He sat down on the track while drunk and the place being a short curve the engineer did not see him in time to stop the train.

An Alderny cow, the property of W. H Carothers, master mechanic, of Tyrone, recently gave birth to twin calves, a male and female, which Mr. Carothers has denominated his "boy and girl." Bill says they have been weaned already and are doing finely. He might be persuaded to part with the twain, but to separate them he will not.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Central Normal School Association held on Monday, the following trustees on the part of the stockholders were elected for three years: S. M. Bickford, G. W. Hipple, J. B. G. Kinsloe and G. Kintzing. Gen. Jesse Merrill, Rev. Jos. Nesbitt, S. M. McCormick and John S. Furst, were recommended to the State Superintendent to act as State Trustees, two of which number will be appointed.

LEBANON, May 1.—The burglars who blew open a safe early yesterday morning at the Orwigsburg shoe factory, in Schuylkill county, are supposed to be Bock and Rauch, the two burglars who escaped from the Lebanon jail some weeks ago. They were trailed to Johnstown where they abandoned their team this morning, which was stolen from a Mr. Wilhelm near Orwigsburg. Officers are on their tracks. It is supposed they are hiding in the vicinity of Johnstown.

Within the past three weeks there have been three cases of chickenpox sent to the Smallpox Hospital in this city by physicians who supposed that the persons afflicted were suffering with the latter disease. From a Children's Home in the southern section of the city six cases of chickenpox were sent to the Smallpox Hospital in mistake for the dread disease. In addition to these there have been two or three cases of measles sent to the hospital through the same mistake within a month. The physician in charge at the hospital states that most of these blunders occur from overhaste on the part of the doctors and the persons in whose house the patients are taken sick. During the prevalence of smallpox in the city such cases are constantly occurring, but recently no deaths have occurred in consequence.—Phila. Record

THE DAY IS DONE.

BY HENRY W. LONGFELLOW.

The day is done, and the darkness
Falls from the wings of Night,
As a feather is wafted downward
From an eagle in his flight.

I see the lights of the village
Gleam through the rain and the mist,
And a feeling of sadness com s o'er me
That my soul cannot resist:

A feeling of sadness and longing,
That is not akin to pain,
And resembles sorrow only
As the mist resembles the rain.

Come, read to me some poem,
Some simple and heartfelt lay,
That shall soothe this restless feeling,
And banish the thoughts of day.

Not from the grand old masters,
Not from the bards sublime,
Whose distant footsteps echo
Through the corridors of Time.

For, like strains of martial music,
Their mighty thoughts suggest
Life's endless toil and endeavor;
And to-night I long for rest.

Read from some humble poet,
Whose songs gush from his heart,
As showers from the clouds of summer,
Or tears from the eyelids start;

Who, through long days of labor,
And nights devoid of ease,
Still heard in his soul the music
Of wonderful melodies.

Such songs have power to quiet
The restless pulse of care,
And come like the benediction
That follows after prayer.

Then read from the treasured volume
The poem of thy choice,
And lend to the rhyme of the poet
The beauty of thy voice.

And the night shall be filled with music,
And the cares, that infest the day,
Shall fold their tents, like the Arabs,
And as silently steal away.

WHAT THE CIRCUS DID.

We were a quiet and sober set,
Little accustomed to noise and fret,
Decent and modest at work or play,
And, oh! so proper in every way,
Before we went to the circus!

Nobody had ever seen us go
At all too fast, or at all too s'ow;
No matter how gaily we talked or sang,
We never had used a word of slang
Before we went to the circus!

We went to church, or we went to school,
By the very most orthodox kind of rule;
For we were a people of Dutch decent,
And rather phlegmatic of temperament,
Until we went to the circus!

Alas and alas! 'tis a woeful sight,
The way we are changed at the time we write
Father is swaying against the breeze,
Hung by the toes from a high trapeze
Trying to copy the circus!

The boys on their heads, with feet in air,
Are riding wild horses on each high chair;
Or down on their backs on the sidewalk brick,
Are balancing tubs for a juggling trick;
The girls have painted their hands and face,
And got themselves up for an Indian race,
As they saw them do at the circus!

Mother high up on the table stands,
Swinging the baby with both her hands,
Swinging the baby with many a rub,
And brandishing him like an Indian club!
While baby himself, in a terrible fright,
Howls like a Zulu from morn till night,
Since we went to the circus!

Alas and alas! I can only say,
I wish in the night, I wish in the day,
I wish with my heart, I wish with my head,
I wish with my ears, which are nearly dead,
I wish with a sort of mute despair,
I wish with a shriek that would rent the air,
We never had gone to the circus!

Our Story Teller.

Mrs. Davenport's Dilemma.

Mr. Davenport hated society, but Mrs. Davenport adored it, and so like amiable married people they agreed to differ, and to each go their own way, quite cordially enjoying, after the battle was over, narrating to each other what had happened, and counting up the dead and wounded. When Mrs. Davenport was very young Mr. Davenport had carefully accompanied her to her carriage, sent her maid to take care of her, and he himself sat up to receive her when she returned. But as she grew older, this sensitive care relaxed, and as he found that she was quite content to go alone, he allowed her to do so, with the coachman on the box.

There had been talk of a night key, but Mrs. Davenport thought that looked too masculine, and she also had a suspicion that she should never learn how to use it. It is a secret difficult of solution to the feminine mind, that of the latch key.

The ball was a large and fine one, and Mrs. Davenport enjoyed it. She was a popular woman, and both men and women liked her. She would have left at one o'clock, her usual hour, but that Herr von Dergmans, the German philologist, was presented to her, and talked so well, and was so evidently inspired by her bright eyes that she stayed on; and the hostess had the great singer, Laremburinani, who must be spoken to in Italian, and Mrs. Davenport spoke Italian with the true Tuscan purity.

So she left the ball very late. Sticknell, her coachman was sleepy and cross, and after depositing her at her number (which is thirty-nine by the way) he drove off very quickly. It was a fine night—moon brilliant, Mars splendid, Jupiter magnificent. Mrs. Davenport liked to look at the stars, and she gazed up admiringly, almost regreting to leave a scene which decidedly paled the ornamentation of the ballroom ceiling which she had just left.

She was destined to see a great a deal more of these same stars than she had bargained for on that particular night, poor woman!

She rang sharply. Nobody came. She rang again, and again, and again. Nobody came. Mrs. Davenport began to feel chilly about the feet, which were delicately clad in white satin slippers and silk stockings.

She wrapped her fur cloak about her and looked up at number thirty-nine, her own familiar brownstone, four story, comfortable house. Not a sign of movement, although the gas burned in the hall. She rang, and rang, and rang. No response. And then she realized that she was locked out, that everybody was asleep, and that there she might stay the rest of the night. She remembered, alas! too late, that she had trusted to her waiter, a gentleman of African descent, who had been known to go to sleep on these night watches, to let her in. Now he seemed to be sunk in the deepest oblivion. But then, if Orlando, slept, some one else had generally waked, and either roused him, or let her in, individually. Mrs. Davenport shuddered. A night on her own front steps.

She kept on ringing desperately; and pounded the door with a delicate fist. Presently a policeman came along, and to him she appealed.

'Oh, got a key?' said he. 'Let me me help unlock the door.'

'But I have not got a key,' said the miserable woman. 'I never had a key.'

'Bad, bad,' said the guardian of the public peace. 'I never knew them to wake up. However, I will rap for you.'

So he pounded the blinds with his club, and made a terrible noise. Two or three heads looked out of the opposite windows. One invalid at 41 raised a window and begged piteously that her rest might not be thus ruthlessly ruined.

'Lady locked out!' sang the policeman.

'Well, is that any reason why you should try to wake the dead?' asked the irate clergyman opposite.

The policeman walked on, leaving Mrs. Davenport in despair.

'Haven't you any friends in this neighborhood?' he asked, as he prepared to move on.

'I should think not,' said she feebly.

She drew her fur cloak about her and sat down on the door mat. She had not regarded that useful article in the light of a divan before, now she was glad of even that medium between herself and the cold doorstep. To weep would not mend the matter; to ring, and pound, and rattle the blinds was useless.

Even the cats, who were the only people abroad in her quiet street, came in for her sympathy.

'They have a hard time, poor things,' said she; 'always locked out.'

It was a cat, however, that gave her an idea. Evidently a predatory Arab of a cat who thought he owned her front steps, for after stealthily creeping up and finding her in possession, he leaped on to a neighboring balcony. She looked after him.

'Dr. Montgomery's—and a speaking tube!' said she. 'Why did I not remember that before!'

Mrs. Davenport drew up her long yellow satin train, laid her fan and handkerchief on the doorstep, and as fast as high heels and satin slippers would allow, went down her own steps and up those of her neighbor, who lived at thirty-seven.

'He is a doctor accustomed to be awakened at all hours,' said she.

She rang, and heard a sleepy voice come down.

'What do you want?'

'Help, help!' said she.

'What help? Who? What number?'

'Thirty-nine; great trouble! Immediate!' said Mrs. Davenport.

The doctor seemed to be hours in coming down. She was nearly in despair again, but at length he opened the door in his heavy overcoat and hat.

'Oh, doctor! doctor! let me in!' said the lady, now quite hysterical. 'Your house is warm; do let me in.'

The doctor was, of course, astonished to see his fashionable neighbor, but hospitable and helpful.

'Will you go up and knock at the partition wall in your front room, doctor, and try to wake Mr. Davenport?' said Mrs. Davenport, now in tears.

'Yes, madam, if you say so. But had you not better spend the night here, quietly?'

'What, next door to thirty-nine! Oh, no! I could not, I must go home. Please, doctor, if it will not disturb Mrs. Montgomery, do go up and make a dreadful noise at the head of Mr. Davenport's bed; it leans up against your parlor, for he always hears your piano.'

The doctor obeyed, and knocked loudly on the wall.

Mr. Davenport heard a distant thunder in his dreams, turned over, with his deaf ear up and slept again.

After a half hour's fruitless knocking, Mrs. Davenport consented to allow the sleepy doctor to retire to his well-earned repose, whilst she declared that she would rest as well as she could in an easy chair down in his consulting-room.

Thirty-seven, thirty-nine and forty-one were at peace at last, and Mrs. Davenport, wrapped in her cloak, and in a warm room, in the house of a neighbor and friend, grew composed, and finally laughed at her adventure. It would be a good joke next morning; but as for Orlando, her colored waiter, there was a look out for him of the blackest! Then poor Mr. Davenport, how alarmed he would be! But she would watch and see the servants begin to open the house, and steal in before he waked up. So saying, she fell sound asleep in her chair.

At length, Mr. Davenport, like all heavy sleepers, woke up suddenly and entirely. He did not know why, but it seemed to him that he had a disturbed night. As he lay trying to collect his faculties, he heard the clock strike four.

'How quiet Coralie is!' said Mr. Davenport; 'tired after her ball, I suppose.

Mr. Davenport listened to hear, through the open door and curtained recess, the quiet breathing of his wife in the next room. She was strangely still, and Mr. Davenport arose softly and crept in to see what could be the matter.

'Heavens!' said he; 'nobody in the bed! Coralie not home at four o'clock!'

Mr. Davenport paused a moment. Could the horses have run away? Could the coachman have been drunk? That had happened before. Could his poor wife have been thrown, dragged—no, the idea was too horrible. Could she have been locked out? Mr. Davenport felt the cold perspiration start on his brow. He rang every bell in the house. He proceeded to dress himself. He danced, in his agony and agitation. Then, as his sleepy servants began to appear and one after the other disclaimed any knowledge of their mistress, he descended to the front door. There lay Mrs. Davenport's fan, handkerchief and gloves! Then Mr. Davenport tore his hair. She had been there, to her own home; she has failed to gain admittance; she had either been ruthlessly carried off, or she had committed suicide. Mr. Davenport lost his head.

'She may have gone to her sister's or to some hotel,' suggested her maid.

'What, at three in the morning, you wretched sleepy head!' said Mr. Davenport widly.

To discharge Orlando, to go for the police, to rouse the world, these were Mr. Davenport's first ideas. He rang up every signal officer in town. The whole machinery of the public service was set to work to find the missing lady.

Mr. Davenport went after his coachman, who, though fully testifying to the fact that he had been drunk, could swear that he left the lady at her own door, at about half-past two in the morning. To take a carriage, to drive to Mrs. Davenport's sister's to all the nearest hotels, these were the duties which the wretched man took upon himself.

In the meantime Mrs. Davenport slept sweetly in the doctor's arm-chair until the housemaid coming in, uttered a loud shriek, and cried,—'Robbers?'

To pacify her, to rouse herself, to step calmly out of the doctor's front door and into her own house was the work of a moment. Mrs. Davenport found all of her people at home and thoroughly awake, but where was Mr, Davenport? He had left no tidings of himself, He was wildly searching for her! Knowing his temperament, Mrs. Davenport felt sure that he would not return until he had dragged the East river. She was at home, all right, and proceeded like a calm woman to get off her ball dress, satin shoes, and silken hose, and to put on a dressing-gown, take a cup of tea, get warm, and then reflect upon what should be done with Mr. Davenport's case.

'It will all be in the papers,' said her prescient soul. 'This evening, at farthest. I will telegraph every where,' she remarked, ringing for a messenger boy.

'Hullo!' said a man at the signal station, 'this is queer! Here is a man trying to find his wife, and now there comes along a woman who is trying to find her husband, and they are both named--Davenport!'

'I dare say—nothing to each other—common name—coincidence, said the telegraph operator, who had learned to talk in jerks.

'Let me see the number,' said the signal man.

'Thirty-nine. Yes, it is the same queer case.'

"Wonder what it all means?"

It was late in the day before a haggard man was found standing on the brink of East River hugging a fan, a pair of gloves, and a handkerchief. Mr. Davenport had evidentaly taken these for purposes of indentification.

When he was finaliy rescued and taken home, after the usual expressions of mingled affection and disgust, anger, joy, reproach, and great contentment, which all married pairs will remember, and furnish for themselves, Mrs. Davenport, remarked, plaintively:

"Why did you not think of Dr. Montgomery's, and the speaking tube, dear?"

"I don't know why I never thought of it; how did you happen to, Coralie?"

"It was the cat!" exclaimed Mrs. Davenport, greatfully.

Mr. Davenport, unwilling to trust to this somewhat uncertain benefactor, had a bell put in which now rings in the garret, and a speaking tube which communicates with his own room; and Mrs. Devenport carries to all the balls now a large and inconvenient latch key.

The anthracite coal in Sullivan county, Pa., is at last attracting the attention it deserves. We have given the matter particular attention and are glad to see that the daily press are 'working up' the field. The following is a sample of what the dailies are printing. "Coal has been discovered in Sullivan county, said by the most eminent chemists who have analyzed it to be pure anthracite of the free burning quality, most reliable for steam making and every manufacturing purpose. The immense amount of this coal discovered must surely have an important effect on the coal and iron trades, and change the back woods of Sullivan county into a thriving coal producing community, and eventually a brisk manufacturing locality."—Ex.

He Clung to His Old Coat.

A good deal of amusement has been caused in dry goods trade circles during the past few days by the leaking out of a little story at the expense of two young gentlemen who are widely and favorably known in the trade. The father of these young men is a prominent Market street merchant, noted for his large wealth, shrewd business ability and great economy, particularly in the matter of wearing apparel. The sons, who are model's of elegance and taste in dress, have for a long time borne a particular antipathy to a certain venerable coat which has clung to their respected parent for many years and often tried by persuasion to induce him to sell it to the rag man and buy a new one. but the old gentleman's invariable reply was, 'You boys shpend money enough for clothes for one family. Dis coat is good enough for me.' At lenght; knowing their father's fondness for a bargain, they thought of a ruse by which to induce him to lay off the old garment and get a new one. Taking a coat which the father had worn they went to their tailor and instructed him to take it as a pattern as to size and fit and make the finest coat he could. 'We will,' said one of them, 'get father down here on some pretense or other and then you must sell him that coat. No matter what he offers, you take it, and we'll pay you the balance.' in due time the sons received word that the coat was finished—price, $80. The next morning, at breakfast, the eldest son casually remarked: 'Father, you will be going near the tailor's to day, and I wish you would stop and tell him to be sure to send home my new coat today, for I have a party to attend to to-night.'

'Very vell, my son, I vill do so, but I don't see what you boys vant with so many coats.'

The old gentleman delivered his message, and the tailor's opportunity had come. Fingering the venerable garment he remarked, persuasively: 'You ought to have a new coat. It is a shame for a rich man like you to wear such old garments as that.'

'Tank you very much, but dis coat is good enough for me.'

'I have got something,' persisted the tailor, 'that I believe will fit you, and it is the grestest bargain that you ever heard of. I made it for a customer, but it was a misfit. The price of that coat,' said the tailor, producing the garment, 'is $80, but it won't fit the man I made it for, and I'll let you have it for next to nothing. Try it on.'

The coat was tried on and proved a perfect fit.

'You'll never get such a bargain again if you live a hundred years,' said the tailor. 'You may have that coat for $40.'

'I'll giff you twenty-five,' said the old merchant, who knew cloth when he saw it.

'Take it.

Carrying his old coat in a bundle the purchaser went out arrayed in the $80 coat.

At supper that night he appeared in the familiar old coat and in excellent good humor. To his sons he said: 'I made a nice little ting today. Ven I vas at the tailor's I bought a coat—a nice, fine coat. The price vas $80, but I got it for $25. I put it on and had not gone a square before I met a friend. He noticed my new coat and spoke about it, and and I told him about how I got it so cheap. He offered me $30 for the coat and I took it—made $5 in fife minutes.'

'Yes,' said the sons, dolefully, in chorus 'you've made five dollars and we have lost fifty-five.' Then they explained. 'My gracious! that is pad,' said the old man, when he comprehended the situation; 'but let dis be a lesson to you, my children. Never dry to deceive your fader.'

The Court's Reliance.

The following joke is related at the expense of Judge Jerry Black while he was arguing the McGarrahan case before the Supreme Court in Washington, some years ago:

One day, while speaking on some motion, Black discovered, at the close of two hours' oration, that the entire bench, including the Chief Justice, was sound asleep. Much incensed, he gathered up his papers and left the room. Meeting the Chief Justice at a dinner at Secretary Fish's that evening, Black angrily commented on the occurrence.

'Why my dear Judge,' said Mr. Chase, with a surprised expression, 'I thought you would be the last man on earth to object to such a thing. The fact was that all the Justices were so fatigued from the President's reception last night, that this morning we consulted together and agreed to hear you on some such motion or other, so that we could all enjoy a good, square nap. We supposed you had been on the bench for so long that you would know how it was yourself.'

'The devil you did?' said the old, flatbottomed legal luminary.

'Yes, but you need't alarm yourself, my dear Black. The shorthand reporter made a full memorandum of your remarks.

'Did, eh?' snapped the Judge. 'Why, he was asleep, to!'

'The devil he was,' exclaimed the Chief Justice, much vexed. 'I always did trust that fellow. In that case, my dear Judge, we will have to rely on the janitor.'

Jumping from Moving Trains.

The Supreme Court has just passed upon a case of considerable interest to travelers who jump from moving trains. A passenger desired to get off at a certain station, but the train did not stop. He jumped, was thrown under the cars and had one of his feet crushed so badly that amputation was necessary. The passenger sued for damages, and the company defended on the ground of negligence. The plaintiff claimed that he had the right to infer, first, that the train would stop at the station; and, second, that it would not run at a rate of speed above that limited by law, if it had stopped, he would of course sustained no injuries. If it had observed the law in regard to speed, he would have been reasonably safe in jumping off, according to the testimony. The plaintiff, in a case like this, naturally had the sympathy of the jury, and the verdict was in his favor. The case was taken to th Supreme Court where the judgment was reversed and a new trial granted.

The point in this case which most interests those who travel by rail is this: The jury found that the plaintiff had not been negligent, and did not contribute to his own injury in jumping from the train. The Supreme Court says he was negligent as to defeat his right to recover any damages whatever. The court held that the agents of the company were wrong in not stopping at the station, but for this inconvenience experienced by the plaintiff there was a legal remedy. The excitement and vexation of the plaintiff, on finding that he was being carried past his stopping place, did not justify his rushing into bodily danger. The negligence of the complainant deprived him of his legal redress, and the defense of the company was declared valid and sufficient, the injury having been caused by the unjustifiable conduct of the plaintiff.

How Father—Served an Insolent Tramp.

A few days ago there was a ring of the door bell at the residence of one of Detroit's most eloquent and popular priests. The Rev. Father answered the summons in person. On the steps he found a healthy and sturdy-looking tramp who thus accosted him:

Tramp—'Would you give a poor hungry man a dime to buy a bit of breakfast with?'

Father———'Well—you look as if you ought not to b begging. Why don't you work? Surely you are able to.'

Tramp—'Can't git no work.'

Father—'I don't like to give you money under the circumstances, but I'll—'

Tramp (insolently)—'Oh, you priests have nothing to do but pray at the rate of twenty cents an hour and get fat, and you think a poor devil ought to work, work, work all the time.'

Father—'Look you Mr. What's your name; you are the very man I want to engage. I've some business down town, and while I'm away you do the praying. You shall have twenty cents an hour.

With a look half incredulous and half of swaggering defiance, the tramp accepted the proposal.

'Come on,' said Father———'I'll show you the chapel.' Leading the way he told the man where to pray and set his sexton to keep a watch on him. The priest was absent three hours and all that time the tramp kept on his knees under the eye of the sexton. His employer, learning that he had fulfilled his contract, paid him sixty cents and dismissed him with an invitation to come every day and earn more money on the same terms.

As a matter of history he has not been back to claim the job.—Detroit Free Press.

The sermon was duller than usual, and it was only here and there that a fully wideawake member of the congregation could be seen, when a little fellow, whose uneasy twistings had aroused his father from a comfortable nap, piped up in a clearly audible voice: 'Pa, what do we have to stay here for?' That simple, childish question injected more animation into the members of the church on that one evening than the pastor had aroused during his entire ministry.

The Rev. Thomas Scott, after publishing an edition of Bunyan's 'Pilgrim's Progress,' containing expository notes, presented a copy of the work to one of his poor parishioners. Upon meeting him soon after, Mr. Scott inquired whether he had read it. 'Yes, Sir,' was the reply 'Do you think you understand it?' 'Oh! yes, Sir,' was the answer; 'and I hope before long that I shall be fully able to understand the notes in it.'

Imparting Information Under Difficulties.

It was on a street car coming up from the Union Depot, yesterday. A man with a very hoarse voice looked across the aisle at a man with a country satchel between his feet, and said:

'Wintry day, isn't it?'

'Hey?' called the other, and he put his hand to his ear.

'Seems like winter, doesn't it?' shouted the man with the hoarse voice.

'Hey? Hey?' asked the deaf man.

'He says,' began a man who was standing up, 'He says it seems like winter.'

At this moment the hoarse-voiced man rose up and slid out of the car. As he did so the deaf man rose up, laid two parcels on the seat and called out:

'Speak louder; I'm deaf!'

'He says it seems like winter,' bawled the man standing up.

'Who says so?'

He turned around to the hoarse-voiced man, but that person had skipped.

'Who says so?' demanded the deaf man.

'I—I—why I say so.'

'Well, what of it? Haven't I seen enough to know that it is winter weather? Don't try any of your guys on me or I'll knock the top of your head off!'

Then the deaf man sat down and the 'middle' man sneaked out and dropped off the car, and said he would spend the rest of his life looking for the hoarse man.

Nervously working his latch-key from the door the business man hurried into the house for dinner. 'Hello, I say, Jane where are you?'

'Here I am, dear. I have just got one more feather to paint on this crane and then it will be finished. Isn't it going to be just lovel—'

'I know, yes, yes. Where's Jennie?'

She's gone out to get a few more Autumn leaves, one or two bare spaces are left on the wall in her room, and—'

'Well, well, of course, but where's Bridget?'

'Oh, she has gone to carry the basket; for Jennie, you know, isn't strong.'

'To be sure, to be sure; but where's the dinner?'

'Now, John, how can you be so cruel, you know that—'

'Yes, I should think I did, I know that the next time I'm such an infernal fool as to bring a copy of 'Household Art' into the house I'll be balder than I am now. It may be jofired pretty but I'm hungry for a square meal. Painted Storks ain't friccaseed chickens, nor Autumn leaves celery.' And he went out of the house in a decided manner, leaving Jane's teardrops falling on the red and blue heron, washing all the pretty feathers out of its tail.

Taking Time by the Forelock.

At the battle of Groveton Stonewall Jackson tried an experiment which nearly frightened a federal division out of their boots. Bars of railroad iron were cut up into foot lengths and fired from some of the heaviest guns, and the noise these missiles made as they went sailing through the air was a sort of a cross between the shriek of a woman and the bray of a mule. The federals listened in wonder at the first few which banged through the treetops, and presently one of the pieces fell just in front of a Pennsylvania regiment. A captain stepped forward to inspect it, and after turning it over he rushed to his colonel with the news:

'Colonel, them infernal rebs are firing railroad iron at us.'

'No!'

'They are, for a fact.'

'Captain, advance your company to that ridge and deploy, and the minute you find Jackson is getting ready to fire freight cars at us send me word. I don't propose to have my regiment mashed into the ground when it can just as well be decently exterminated in the regular way.'

Blasting Without Drilling.

Experiments have been recently carried out by Major Lauer, of the Austrian Engineers, at Krems, on the Danube, to show the value of his new method of blasting rocks under water. The chief feature of Laurer's system is to employ a hollow cylinder, like a gas pipe, and to place the dynamite cartridge, not as hitherto in a hole bored into the rock to be blasted, but in the cylinder in question. The cartridge only touches the surface of the rock which is desired to shatter. The explosion of the dynamite is effected by means of electricity, and the effect is said to be greater than with the usual cartridge in a hole bored in the rock. The rock is shattered into fragments so small that a fair stream is able to wash them away without help, whereas in the case of gunpowder the rock is split up into blocks more or less large and troublesome to remove. The Lauer system is calculated to effect a saving of fully forty per cent. as compared with the old system.

Large vs. Small Potatoes for Seed

The Elmira Farmers' club discussed this subject at its late meeting, and the Husbandman says: In response to the question, what is the difference, except in size, between large potatoes and small ones grown in the same hill, all well matured, of good quality and equal vigor in the eyes? W. A. Armstrong answered: There is no difference, except as the large potatoes give more sustenance, and therefore may give greater support to shoots in the early stages of growth. We speak of potatoes for planting as seed, but they are not. In planting we employ root propagation, exactly as if we plant joints of roots to propagate quack grass. In either case it is only necessary to use a piece of root strong enough to support the shoot until it begins to make roots for itself. A potato as large as a walnut with the shuck off, if well ripened and sound, is, in suitable ground and a favorable season, just as good as a larger one and will give as full yield. By continual collection of small potatoes one would inevitably gather many imperfectly ripened, and from other causes there would be others imperfectly developed, not sound, and therefore not fit for planting. In field culture it is very common to get large crops of large potatoes from small ones planted. Nobody expects a small sound potato to bear all small ones, or even a large proportion of small ones. I remember a year when I had not enough potatoes of full size for planting, and I used, to finish the field, very small potatoes; I dare say the average was scarcely larger than a hickory nut. Fancy varieties were planted in a portion of the field, the seed cut to about three eyes, common market varieties in a large portion, the potatoes cut in halves or quarters and in the remainder the very small potatoes. The crop was good, and there was no perceptible difference in quality or yield in that part where small potatoes had been planted. As a rule it is better to plant potatoes of a large size simply because there is less risk of getting imperfect seed. The main requirement is a strong, vigorous shoot. Get that, and, if there is no potato at the end of it there may be a good crop from the planting.

Food and Swine Disease.

Last year the crop of corn in most parts of this country was very light, and as a consequence the price was high. Many farmers who had hogs to fatten sold corn and fed their hogs on other materials. Less was heard about the disease or diseases that are popularly known as a hog cholera than during several previous years. The absence of the disease in places where it had prevailed before may not be owing to the small amount of corn eaten by hogs, but it furnishes an indication that such was the case. The disease generally known as hog cholera has not prevailed to any alarming extent in other countries where vegetables, fruits and grains other than corn are fed to hogs to a considerable extent. A diet composed almost exclusively of corn does not appear to be favorable to either men or beasts. It does not answer for horses, cows or sheep. They will fatten on it, but will soon fall off in condition.

There can be no doubt about the excellence of corn for fattening hogs but observation shows that it should be fed in moderation, and in connection with other kinds of food that are more easily digested and which tend to the production of muscle, rather than fat. Pumpkins, squashes, apples, artichokes, potatoes and roots may not of themselves produce much fat, but aid digestion, produce muscle, prevent disease, insure a steady growth, and keep up the general condition of animals. The past year has helped to show farmers what may be done by raising hogs on a small amount of corn. If hogs have not been very fat, they have been very healthy.—Chicago Tribune.

Attachment to Newspapers.

The strong attachment of subscribers to well conducted newspapers is fully confirmed by publishers. "Stop my paper," words of dread to beginners in business, lose their terror after a paper has been established for a number of years. So long as it pursues a just, honorable and judicious course, meeting the wants of its customers in all respects, the ties of friendship between the subscriber and paper are as hard to break by outside third party as the link which binds old friends in business or social life. Occasional defects and errors in a newspaper are overlooked by those who have become attached to it through its perusal for years. They sometimes become dissatisfied with it on account of something which has slipped into its columns and may stop taking it, but the absense of the familiar sheet at their homes and offices for a few weeks becomes an insupportable privation, they hasten to take it again, and possibly appologize for having stopped. No friendship on earth is more constant than that contracted by the reader for a journal which makes an honest and earnest effort to merit its continued support. Hence a conscienciously conducted paper becomes a favorite in a family.

An epitaph is a curious place in which to look for wit, but there are two epitaphs which, while they excite a smile, do not interfere with more serious thoughts. When the actor Burbadge died his friends pondered over a suitable inscription, and at last happily hit upon this, which is surely simple enough, and yet tells the whole story,—"Exit Burbadge." When Charles Knight died Jerrold suggested that this equally simple inscription should be put on his tomb—"Good Knight."

is not incurable, if properly attended to.—Consumption, at its commencement, is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is more observable, but rather dry; then becomes local fever and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces

and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are also drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the cause, generally destroys the hectic before the cough is entirely gone. ### Ingersoll's Indignation.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—In the criminal court to-day the cases against Brady, the Dorseys, Turner and others were begun. Another motion to quash was made in Turner's case, but Judge Wylie overruled it. During the afternoon Bliss referred to Ingersoll's failure to produce John W. Dorsey in court and charged that his failure was a mere measure of delay. At this point Ingersoll sprang to his feet and bringing his fist down upon the table exclaimed, 'You are a liar, sir; a liar.' Considerable excitement followed and Judge Wylie said: 'Such language is intolerable, and I will not endure it. Perhaps Colonel Ingersoll has gone beyond the just measure of retaliation, but the offense of Bliss is inexcusable. I will allow this offense to pass upon this occasion, but warn all the gentlemen to avoid a repetition of it.' Merrick then entered into a long explanation of the circumstances of the argument between counsel as to Dorsey's appearance and claimed that the statement of Colonel Bliss was correct. Ingersoll in answer to an inquiry from the court said he did not deny the facts. He did deny that he had been guilty of a trick. He had acted with perfect good faith under the conviction that he would be able to produce Dorsey. He supposed when he made the arrangement that he had the power to produce Dorsey, and wanted to say now that he could not. Bliss then followed with a personal explanation, which the court interrupted to say that they had better get to work. Upon the request of Merrick extension of the hearing until May 16 was granted.

Davidson's Deadly Deed.

PHILADELPHIA, May 4.—About 7 o'clock this evening John Davidson, aged 32, residing at 718 Swanson street, killed his mother, 50 years of age, by crushing her skull with a hatchet. He was arrested and locked up. Davidson is a huckster and when not on a debauch peddled produce through the streets and has been looked upon as half-witted. His son Richard, who was in the room, states that his father first kicked over a slop bucket and when Mrs. Davidson remonstrated with him he rushed at her in a rage. She picked up a chair to defend herself and he grabbed the batchet and struck her on the back of the head with the blunt end of it. The boy fled from the room and when the neighbors arrived they found Mrs. Davidson's lifeless body on the floor. Davidson ran down stairs and was seized by two men who handed him over to an officer.

Indian Outbreaks.

CHICAGO, May 4.—A Rawlins, Wyoming, special: It is stated that the Shoshones and Bannock Indians at the Wind River agency, one hundred and twenty miles north of here, broke out upon the departure of the two companies of Third cavalry from Warhakie, which is the agency post. Only a few men were left to garrison the post while the two companies were sent to fight the Apaches. There are about two thousand Indians on this reservation. All were splendid fighters and were excellent scouts under General Crook in his champaign of 1876 and 1877 against the Sioux and Cheyennes. There are several theories advanced as to the cause of their outbreak, one that the killing of Ute Jack incensed them. Army officers believe that they were ready to fight, and simply took advantage of the absence of troops to take the war path and leave the reservation. No confirmation or contradiction of the report has been received yet, but the best informed are uneasy and apprehend the report is true.

General Sheridan has official dispatches from Colonel Forsythe, dated April 30, confirming the news that thirteen Indians were killed at the Horse Shoe canon fight on the 20th and seven killed by Captain Tupper on the 20th of April; also that Colonel Garcia, with a column of Mexican troops, on the 29th attacked the Indians. Colonel Forsythe while pursuing them, killed seventy-eight and took thirty-three prisoners. Colonel Forsythe says he returns at once to Separ, sending three companies of the Sixth cavalry, under Captain Tupper, via Gaylordsville, and that the Indian band has been almost annihilated.

The Philadelphia Gas Works.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 4.—There was presented to a select counsel to-day a communication from a number of prominent citizens proposing to lease the Philadelphia gas works for twenty years at five per cent. a year or $12,000,000 and charge consumers $1.50 a thousand cubic feet, or if permitted to charge consumers $2 a thousand; to pay the city $15,175,000 a year, and at the end of twenty years to purchase the works for $15,000,000 if the city chooses to sell, and if not to return the property upon payment of a fair price for improvements made. There was also submitted in connection with the above an ordinance authorizing the sale of the gas works at public sale, no bid less than $10,000,000 to be raised. Both were referred to the finance committee.

A Horrible Accident.

SINKING SPRING, May 5.—George Moyer, residing on Cushion hill and employed in one of the stone quarries near here, went home yesterday after the day's work and subsequently called on his near neighbor, Baltzle, who wanted a large rock on his premises broken to pieces. He assisted Baltzle in drilling a hole in the stone and while loading it with powder an explosion took place which threw him twenty feet over the rock. The powder burned his whole face, singed off his eyebrows, tore out one of his eyes and wounded the other and burned the flesh on three fingers of his left hand to a crisp.

Missouri's Legislature.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 5.—The legislature adjourned to-day after the state apportionment bill had received the governor's approval. Out of fourteen congressional districts, one in the southwest is given to the republicans, who also claim to have excellent prospects in two St. Louis districts. Chauncey J. Filley thinks the republicans stand a chance of carrying five districts.

The Crew Safe.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—Secretary Chandler has received the following dispatch from Lieutenant Barry, commander of the United States search steamer, Rodger:

IRKOUTSK, May 4.—The Rodger was destroyed by fire originating in the forehold on November 30. All efforts to save the ship were unavailing. The people landed safely but with difficulty through the ice. They are now quartered in natives' houses. They have very little clothing. One month's provisions were saved. Native food is abundant, and therefore there is no danger of starving. Bearer with dispatches enroute.

Wants to be Secretary.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The chairman of the republican campaign committee intends to call a meeting of that body to-morrow for the purpose of electing a secretary. Colonel D. B. Henderson, who was chairman of the Iowa delegation in the Chicago national convention, has entered the lists as a candidate for the secretaryship of this committee. He is understood to be backed for it by Senator Allison and several other prominent members, and his friends confidently predict his election.

Unable to Agree.

CHARLESTON, S. C., May 5.—In the United States court to-day the jury in the case of the Charleston election managers, charged with ballot box stuffing, were brought into court and announced their inability to agree, whereupon they were discharged and a mis-trial entered. The jury, it is understood, were eight for conviction and four for acquittal.

Mr. Maynard's Funeral.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 5.—Funeral of Hon. Horace Maynard took place this afternoon. The remains were interred in Grey cemetery.

Stabbed to Death.

LONDON, May 6.—Lord Frederick Cavendish, chief secretary for Ireland, and Under Secretary Burke were stabbed to death this evening in Phoenix Park, Dublin. Lord Cavendish and Earl Spencer had remained at Dublin Castle, engaged in official business, until 6 o'clock this evening, when each drove to his respective residence. After dinner Lord Cavendish and Mr. Thomas Henry Burke, under secretray for Ireland, went for a walk in Phoenix Park. They were stabbed close to the chief secretary's lodge. No arrests have been made.

They were both strolling in the park about half a mile from the city gate and a quarter of a mile from the chief secretary's lodge, when a car drove up containing four men, two of whom jumped down from the car and attacked Lord Cavendish and Mr. Burke, stabbing them both several times in the throat and breast. The victims struggled for life, and in the struggle became separated, their bodies being found some ten paces apart. The tragedy occurred about ten minutes after 7 o'clock in the evening and broad daylight. The bodies were first discovered by two young gentlemen who were riding bycycles through the park, and who immediately gave the alarm to the police. Surgeons soon reached the spot, but the police were already conveying Mr. Burke's body away to the town, where an examination showed life to be extinct. The upper part of the body was perforated in a shocking manner and presented a ghastly sight. Proceeding further the medical men reached the body of Lord Cavendish, which was being conveyed away from the park on a stretcher. The body of the chief secretary displayed the same dreadful wounds, in addition to which his left arm was also broken and torn, as if he had put it up to protect his breast. Lord Cavendish was quite dead. The bodies were taken to Stevens hospital, where they will remain until an inquest is held.

Parnell and Davitt have been interviwed on the subject and denounce the deed in unmeasured terms.

Fire in Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 7.—The most destructive fire that has occurin this city since the memorable riots of 1877 took place to-day. About 12:30 o'clock smoke was seen issuing from the interior of the massive stone court house, and the flames gained such headway that the firemen's work was almost futile, and by 4 o'clock the stone walls only remained. The fire created intense excitement and on account of the jail being attached to the burning building fears were entertained that the prisoners would escape.

There was no occasion for alarm, however, as the jail was not in danger, and a close guard was kept over the inmates who were not aware that a fire was in progress near them. As soon as the fire was discovered a number of officials and others forced their way into the burning building and succeeded in saving nearly all of the records and law library. While endeavoring to save the records in the jury commissioners office Harry McDermott, a grandson of Jury Commissioner Hagan, was killed by the falling glass, several firemen narrowly escaping death by burning and a number were more or less injured by the falling debris, but the accident to McDermott is believed to be the only one resulting fatally. The building destroyed was of stone and originally cost about $200,000 and many thousands have been expended in improvements. The insurance on the burned portion is $50,000.

The Jeannette's Dead.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—No additional particulars concerning the fate of Lieutenant De Long and party have been received. The navy department officials have little or no hope of the rescue of Chipp's party. Engineer Melville, in his dispatch to the department, said he had no doubt that they had all perished, but he would use every effort to recover their bodies. The general impression is that Chipp's boat was capsized in the gale that separated the three boats and that all hands were drowned. The following is a correct list of the De Long party, according to the records found in a hut by Melville: Lieutenant De Long, Surgeon Ambler, J. J. Collins, A. Gartz, Ah. Sam Alexy, H. H. Kock, J. W. Boyd, W. Lee, N. Iverson and A. Dressler. There were originally fourteen men in De Long's party. Of these Noros and Ninderman are safe and Erickson died and was buried in the Lena.

A Terrible Fall.

GREENFIELD, Mass., May 7.—The staging on which six Boston riveters employed in building a bridge over the Connecticut River railroad at Cheapside fell yesterday, precipitating eight men a distance of sixty-five feeet to the ground, injuring all of them and two fatally. Hugh Warnock and Enman Winster are the two most seriously injured. They will not live. The others are severely injured about the spine and two will suffer from paralysis, John O'Brien and Thomas Flavin, while others, Joseph H. Nichols and Michael Crawley, are in a precarious condition.

Search for the Missing Explorers.

LONDON, May 7.—The yacht Kara, of eighty-five tons burden, belonging to Sir Henry Gore Booth, is taking in store at London preparatory to proceeding to the polar regions. Sir Henry Gore Booth will render every assistance in his power to the Leigh Smith search expedition.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

Y. M. C. A. Entertainment.

As the receptions given to the people of this place by the Young Men's Christian Association are the most engrossing theme of this week, we take pleasure in referring to the happy occasion which took place on Tuesday evening in what was termed on the printed programme—a reception to the sustaining friends of the Association and to the ladies. Although we were unavoidably prevented attending, we hear it spoken of on all hands as an exceedingly pleasant affair. The attendance was very large and the programme of entertainment was full and interesting. Among the guests present was an organization of excellent choral singers from Centre Hall, composed as follows: Messrs. George Emerick and M. S. Derstine, bass; J. H. Lohr, tenor; Mrs. Annie Boozer and Miss Emma Van Pelt, soprano; Misses Lora Murray, Kate Reesman and Gertrude Miller, alto; J. Whitmer Wolfe, pianist. Mr. Clevan Dinges was present as manager. Among the selections which they rendered that elicited the most admiration may be mentioned "Rock of Ages" and the anthem, "Prepare to meet thy God."

State College was alse represented by a band of gentlemen singers, composed of Messrs. Dale, Roberts, Laughman, Lowery, White, Butts, Tait and Reeves. All their selections were rendered in a happy manner and contributed much to the enjoyment of the occasion.

Several of our home musicians also entertained the guests of the evening with vocal and instrumental selections. Among those which we have heard alluded to in terms of unlimited praise were an instrumental solo, "The Last Hope," by Miss Sallie Hoffer, and a vocal duett, the title of which we forget, sang by Mr. John Lyon and Miss Mary Lyon.

—We buy our groceries at Sechler's store. We did it often and will do it more.

—The learned and eloquent pastor of the M. E. Church made a passing allusion in his discourses Sunday to those persons who patronized or aided the circus in its recent exhibitions in this place. His comments were not of the kind calculated to make his auditors sit more comfortably in their seats. We are glad to hear that the reverend gentleman has the courage to condemn what he considers wrong, (very few ministers have the courage), even if it is in regard to things which apparently are not looked upon as sinful by many professedly Christian people.

—The truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth is that Harry Green's cigars are the best.

—The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society met Friday night at the residence of Mrs. James A. Beaver. Considering the unfavorable weather the attendance was very fair. Mrs Roberts led the meeting, and gave a pleasing talk on China and Chinese manners. At the conclusion of the business meeting Mrs. Magee rendered several vocal selections in her usual excellent manner, which added to the interest of the hour allotted for social enjoyment. Mrs. Beaver was particularly agreeable on this occasion and made it very pleasant for her guests.

—Of George A. Brown, Esq., who was last week admitted to practice in the courts of this county, the Clinton Democrat says: "As is well known he is the District Attorney of this county and is filling that position with a marked degree of ability. Few young men possess more energy or have a more thorough knowledge of the practice of law than he."

—Jump out of bed at break of day, buy your groceries without delay; and only a moderate price you'll have to pay if you buy at Sechler's.

—The public and even those who are accustomed to travel over the Pennsylvania road will no doubt be surprised to learn that at Broad street station, Philadelphia, no less than 114 passengers trains go out and 113 come in every twenty four hours, making a train either one way or the other about every six minutes, and yet with the bureau of information, the guide boards and the station arrangements, a passenger could hardly mistake his train if he tried.

—Mr. Miller Tiffin, manager of the Car Works, showed us this morning one of the new Garfield five-cent postage stamps. The design is pretty, and the work is artistically executed.

—Great curiosity is expressed to know what kind of a bill-of-fare will be spread before the Y. M. C. A. at their supper on Tuesday night of next week.

—Peruna cured my daughter's sore eyes after occulists had failed. C. F. Schreader, Allegheny City.

—Is is said that a Sunday school teacher was exhibiting his specimen pupil to a company of visitors, and in the course of some questions propounded to elicit evidence of the child's precocity, asked: "Now tell me why does the Lord love your mother, Samuel?" "'Cause she's a sinner." "Very good; and why does she come to church on Sunday?" "'Cause she has a new bonnet almost every week." The Sunday school teacher and the visitor turned their heads away for an instant and seemed to be reading the scripture texts on the walls of the Sunday school room. The smile which played on the lips of each when they again gave their attention to the class before them showed that they considered the reply of the precocious youngster very satisfactory and excellent. What a truthful boy he was, and how discerning of the motives of others. Verily, he will grow to be a true man and will buy his groceries at Sechler's store. In this as in other things he will exhibit his superior wisdom. The wise man always consults his own interests, which is quite proper if they do not conflict with the interests of other persons, and we have repeatedly endeavored to impress upon the minds and conscience of our readers that it is to their very best interest to purchase groceries of Sechler. Begin at once and continue the good practice during your natural lives and so will health and happiness, peace and prosperity, and all the other good things of life attend you.

—Decidedly the liveliest runaway which has occurred in Bellefonte for a long time took place on Allegheny street on Wednesday afternoon. A spirited horse belonging to Mr. Sam'l Leitzell, of Spring Mills, was standing in front of Doll & Mingle's shoe store, when, becoming frightened at a swinging sign overhead, it pulled the hitching post from the ground and started off at full speed. The first object it encountered was the horse of Dr. Hoy, standing on the opposite side of the street. The Doctor rushed forward and secured his own horse, the runaway animal darting toward the mercantile establishment of the Joseph Brothers, the hitching post rattling behind it. From this point it ran on the pavement along Allegheny street to Bishop, and along the pavement on the south side of Bishop as far as Smith's saloon, where it fell and was caught. Its injuries are quite serious. It is remarkable that many persons were not knocked down and hurt by the frightened animal, a little son of Mr. W. A. Lyon being the only victim. We believe the little fellow's injuries, though painful are not serious.

—Dr. Geissinger won the beautiful $15 billiard cue offered by the proprietors of the Bush House billiard saloon to the one who should within ten days after Saturday, the 22d ult., make the best shot after a break. The time ended on Wednesday evening. The highest number of balls was fifteen. To the victor belongs the spoils.

Surprising to Everybody.

It is surprising to most everybody what piles and piles of Clothing, Boots and Shoes are carried away from the Boston Clothing House, just opened in Reynolds' block, opposite the Brockerhoff House, Allegheny street, Bellefonte, Pa. People are to be seen at that house supplying themselves with Men's, Boys' and Children's Clothing, Boots and Shoes from every part and direction, from almost every town and village in this and adjoining counties. Bellefonte has never seen so many strangers coming into town as now since the opening of the great Boston Clothing House. It won't be very long until almost everybody for 50 miles around will be convinced that a visit to that concern even for an ordinary purchase will pay them well. The sales of that House since the opening are very large, and the low prices they are selling Clothing, Boots and Shoes for will make the Boston Clothing House in Bellefonte the leading place for Clothing, Boots and Shoes, and everything in the line of Men's and Boys' Wear. It has the facility for doing it. Don't mistake the place, the Boston Clothing House, just opened in Reynolds' Block, opposite the Brockerhoff House, Allegheny street, Bellefonte, Pa.

P. S.—We call your kind attention to the fine and elegant line of Ladies' and Children's Shoes which we sell cheaper than any place in the County.

—I met him again the other day. He had recovered from the relapse occasioned by our serious conversation of a month ago. I asked him where he had taken up his abode. "Oh!" he replied, "I'm living by the canal for the present. I should be delighted if you'd drop in some evening." Such a reply as the above is not at all pleasant to receive. Better, far better, avoid such persons entirely. That a friend should wish you to drop in the canal is a thought almost too heartless to be conceived. If he had said that he lived near Sechler's grocery store and would be delighted to have his friend drop in there some evening or during the day-time the good-sense of the expression would have been apparent. It is only necessary for a person to "drop in" Sechler's store to be thoroughly delighted with all that can be seen or heard there. The very best groceries can always be obtained at the most moderate price and his experience there will be eminently satisfactory to himself and gratifying to all concerned. He will purchase more or less of the delicious groceries, and if he has never done so before the effect will be apparent in the excellence of the food prepared in his house which he will find the best that has ever tickled his palate.

—A very attractive looking freight car was brought to this place on Saturday. In gaudy letters was painted "Illuminating, lubricating and miners' oils. Philipsburg Oil Company No. 1, Philipsburg, Pa.," It was supposed at first to be the the advertising car of a circus, but we are almost sure that it was not.

—The new axe pole factory recently put in operation by Mr. Harry Levy, of Milesburg, is enjoying a genuine boom. Everything about the establishment presents a lively appearance and orders are being filled as rapidly as the capacity of the works will permit.

—Sunflowers may be a favorite among floral specimens, but the cigars sold by Harry Green certainly excel all others to be found in this part of the country.

—It is not exaggerating to say that thousands of swallows circled around the old Bellefonte Academy building on Sunday evening during the twilight hours. It seemed to be the first gala night of the season for them.

Which is the most profitable, to continue a week longer at the desk or ten days more upon the farm, and then be confined from two to four weeks, pay ten to twenty dollars doctor's bills, or in the beginning take one or two days, invest 50 cents for a bottle of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, then continue on in the even tenor of your way, financially and physically better off?

—Two tramps were observed in this vicinity on Sunday. This is a member of the genus homo which does not often come to Bellefonte, but it would be well for people to be on their guard against them.

—How many of our home capitalists are preparing to bid in the car works on the 17th instant? Must strangers furnish the capital to keep our town alive?

—I had neuralgia and palpitation of the heart. Peruna cured me. Aug. Melgert, Pittsburgh, Pa.

This original nutrient and tonic is rich in nourishment and strength. It tides the patient over the most critical stages of the disease, digests and assimilates food, enriches and purifies the blood. It builds up the system by stimulating into new life the entire process of digestion.

THE LATEST NEWS.

Cabinet Meeting.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—At a cabinet meeting to-day it was decided that the president should issue a proclamation for the lawless cowboys in Arizona to disperse and if the order is not obeyed to use the military to enforce it. The cabinet sustained the action of the president in his message for additional legislation on this subject and disagreed with the action of the senate judiciary committee in reporting that no farther legislation was necessary. The Fitz John Porter case was also under consideration. The Indian outbreak in Arizona was discussed and prompt and vigorous action determined upon on the part of the military. All the members were present except Attorney General Brewster, who is slightly indisposed.

Henry W. Longfellow's Will.

BOSTON, Mass. May 2.—Judge Brooks gave decision to-day at Cambridge which materially affects several bequests in the will of Henry W. Longfellow. The decision is that erasures which occur are to be considered no part of the will and also that the interlineations are of no effect. This deprives each of the children of the testator's brother of a legacy of $1,000 and makes void the legacy of $5,000 to his brother Stephen. The decision is based upon the ground that a will cannot be altered except by a codicil. The will was admitted to probate.

A $25,000 Church Burnt.

DOVER, May 2.—The Washington street Baptist church was burned. Loss, $25,000; partially insured. About 4 o'clock this afternoon part of the walls of the church fell in, burying several persons. Mrs. Stewart Clifford was taken out badly injured. Mrs. Whitney had an arm and a leg broken, and J. H. Burleigh was seriously hurt. It is feared that they received internal injuries which may prove fatal to several. Other persons who were in the building at the time escaped uninjured.

Earl Granville.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The state department furnishes a letter from Earl Granville to Minister West concerning the imprisonment of American citizens in Ireland, in which he details at considerable length the views taken by the English government on the subject, and heretofore published to the effect that American Irishmen in Ireland must submit like other Irishmen to the laws. He quotes at some length from Seward's dispatch during the rebellion to show that the position taken by the British government now is the same as that held by the United States government in 1866.

Pugilists.

BANGOR, May 2.—The State authorities having obtained information concerning an intended prize fight between Tommy Bates, the Sheffield boxer, and young Jim Hurst, formerly of Montreal, Governor Plaisted took steps to prevent the encounter and the men and their managers have been notified that arrests will follow the pitching of the ring. The fight will therefore not take place in this country, but efforts will be made to start away to a quiet spot in another country, when the pugilists will settle their differences.

County Conventions.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., May 2.—At the republican convention of Franklin county to-day, the stalwarts carried all their measures and elected delegates to the state convention. Crawford, Shillito and Good were nominated for the legislature.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., May 2.—The republican county convention to-day elected delegates to the state convention and instructed them for Beaver.

The Imprisoned Americans.

Killed by an Explosion.

LONDON, May 2.—Seven persons have been killed by an explosion in the Victoria colliery.

Pedestrian Rowell.

NEW YORK, May 2.—If Charles Rowell had just achieved a great pedestrian victory he could not have received more hearty cheers and lusty "good-byes" and shouts of "good luck" than greeted him when he stood on the bow of the Wyoming this afternoon as she backed out into the stream preparatory to turning her nose towards the shores of England. Among the crowd on the pire were his backer, Peter Duryea, and a cluster of sporting men, actors from Wallack's Theatre and many friends whom the little Englishman had made during his long stay in New York. Mr. Langford, one of Rowell's handlers during his races, accompanied the pedestrian. Rowell said that he doubted whether he should be able to get on a race with Hazel in England. He thought he would return in the fall, but his plans were not matured as to his future movements. He took, hree trotters over with him in the Wyoming. One is the stallion American Boy, with a record of 2.27; another the Maud D., by Almont, dam a Virginian-bred mare, and the last a two year old colt by Auctioneer, dam by Lexington.

Independent Republicans.

PHILADELPHIA, May 3.—The executive committee of the Citizens Republican association of Pennsylvania appointed at the conference of independent republicans held here on January 12, have issued a call for a state convention to be held in this city on May 24. In their call they say, should the convention of May 10 fail to nominate as its candidates men who in their character, antecedents and affiliations are the embodiments of the principles of pure republicanism, free from the inquities of bossism and of an honest administration of public affairs, and free from the evils of the spoils system; such nominations, or any one such nomination, should be emphatically repudiated by the independent convention of May 24 and by the independent republicans of Pennsylvania in November next.

Killed by a Tramp.

CARBONDALE May 1.—James Trethway, a tramp, asked for lodging at the house of Henry Ames, in the suburbs of this city, on Wednesday. He was refused. Ames, in going from the house to the barn an hour later, was approached by Threthway, who shot him through the head, the ball passing out through the left cheek. Mr. Amg's wife heard his cries, and hurried to him. Upon reaching the wounded man, she also received a wound upon the head. Both died yesterday. Trethway escaped across the mountains.

An Old Swindler Wanted.

BOSTON, May 2.—Boston detectives are looking for Amos C. Keito, who, it is alleged, left the city with some $8,000 loaned him on worthless securities. In 1862-3 he was in Philadelphia as agent of the Equitable Life Insurance Company. He next turned up as owner of a New Jersey peach orchard. He organized a company with a large capital in Philadelphia to run the orchard which was valueless. He pocketed the money realized on the stock and left. Later on he appeared in New York city as agent for a patent soap.

The Murphy Murder.

ALTONA, May 4.—The jury in the Murphy murder case having been out all night unable to agree sent for the court at 6 o'clock this morning and rendered a verdict of murder in the second degree. The prisoner when brought into court at this early hour manifested no special interest and heard the pronouncing of the verdict—that saved his neck from the gallows—with all the stoical indifference that characterized him during the trial.

Fears of a Massacre.

Cuticura

Resolvent

I will now state that I made a miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin disease known. The patient is a man forty years old; had suffered fifteen years. His eyes, scalp and nearly his whole body presented a frightful appearance. Had had the attention of twelve different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as iodide potassium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate, sarsaparilla, etc. Had paid $500 for medical treatment with but little relief. I prevailed upon him to use the CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally, and the CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally. He did so, and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face, and many other parts of his body, which presented a most loathsome appearance, is now soft and smooth as an infant's with no scar or trace of the disease left behind. He has now been cured twelve months.

Reported by F. H. BROWN, Esq., Barnwell, S. C.

Sixteen months since an eruption broke out on my leg and both feet, which turned out to be eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance. —The Y. M. C. A. now occupies a glass house—at least, so far as the room on the eastern exposure of the building is concerned. They will take care not to throw stones.

—The Beaver boom has developed into a hurricane of popular approval from one end of the State to the other, and the Democratic bosses may as well go a-fishing as to waste their time in nominating a ticket.

—Many fruit raisers expressed a fear that the crop would be destroyed by last nights cold. It may be, but let us possess our souls with patience, for has not God promised seed, time and harvest in their season.

—The Bellefonte Glass Works have been doing good work since they repaired their furnace a short time ago and put in an engine for blast. They are now turning out one hundred and fifty boxes of glass per day.

—An old gentleman, while in conversation in the office of the Garman House, on Wednesday, suddenly fell to the floor unconscious. It was feared that he had a stroke of apoplexy, but he soon revived when restoratives were administered and is now as well as usual.

—The freight train from Snow Shoe James Whittaker conductor, was wrecked at Fountain Station Tuesday evening, May 2, delaying the passenger train which leaves Bellefonte until 2 o'clock the next morning. Several passengers for Snow Shoe remained in the depot until the train arrived.

—John Agnew Musser, a son of Geo. W. Musser, of Lemont, has been lying ill for several weeks with inflammation of the bowels, little hopes being entertained of his recovery. We are glad to learn, however, that there is now some improvement in his condition and that the doctors now express a hope that he may recover.

—There were numerous drunks in town Monday. Six men were put in the cooler, three of whom gave the police some trouble but were finally safely landed. The offenders were McGinley, Fish, Quay, Dougherty, and two men by the name of Wyland. They were brought before the Burgess later in the day and fined two dollars and costs.

—The Bellefonte Car Works are again offered for sale at auction, on Wednesday, May 17th. The descriptive catalogue is very complete, and sets forth among other things that the works have a capacity of eight cars per day; have ten acres of ground, with a right to flood twenty acres in storing water for use. The reason for selling is that the owner does not live in Bellefonte and is not likely to; is not a practical car builder, and not able to give the business his personal attention. There will be no pretence bidding or selling; therefore, we conclude that the owners are now determined to sell to the highest bidder. These works have been running successfully for some time, and it seems as though a stock company might make them pay handsomly on the investment.

A Tax-payer Finds Fault.

We have received the following communication from a correspondent residing at Houserville, a prominent and wealthy citizen of our county, which we give for what it is worth. It will be seen that he is not satisfied with the doings of our Commissioners. We would, however, remind our friend and others that a little charity should be exercised in judging of the acts of the present board. They are trying to get out of the trouble which years of negligence in the conduct of affairs have brought them. Let us give them time to show whether they are the right men in the right place or not. The county is in debt; defaulting tax collectors have contributed greatly to this result. The present board are trying to get out of the difficulty. They may not do just as every one may think is right, or best, but let us suppose they are doing what they honestly suppose is right and best, until the contrary seems proved; or, in other words, give them a fair trial. Then, if they are really trying to do for the best, they are in a position to know what is best:

Mr. Editor: The wolf is now at the tax-payer's door. Five mills is the assessment for 1882 to run the county on the narrow-gauge principal of the present commissioners. During the last six years there were some thirteen bridges built by the county, and four or five thousand dollars spent on the jail and the assessment was never over four mills on the dollar, and allowing for all the crookedness of Spangler & Co., which amounts to thousands more, the county was on the 1st of January, 1882, only about five or six hundred dollars in debt over the assets, as shown by the last auditor's report, which audit was managed by the present commissioners. These men must suppose that they have kicked up enough dust at the start to blindfold the tax-payers of the county. The auditors' statement shows $62,359 of assesments from former years and $15,000 of asylum bills paid by the county, $75,359 in all. Now this year's assessments is $52,000, making $127,359 in all of assesments, the estimated expenses for the present year being $59,000. Tax-payers look at the facts and then think of the five mills assessed by this board of commissioners in a year when the wheat crop is a terrible failure. I would refer these men to an authority which says "the wicked shall not live out half their days." These men want $59,000 to run the county on the pinch gut principle, whereas, it took only $53,121 to run it on the full belly and bed tick role last year. TAX-PAYER.

A Good Opening.

A late member of the Coal Trade Journal contains the following in regard to a new railroad to the Clearfield coal region:

"There is no railroad projected or to be projected, that would prove so profitable a business venture, as another outlet from the Clearfield coal region. A line seventy miles in length, would connect the millions of tons of coal yet undeveloped in Centre and Clearfield counties with the Reading and New Jersey Central system. A million and a half tons of coal the first year, and a large amount of coke, to say nothing of the timber, would find an outlet to market by the line named. In a few years many of the operations now working will have exhausted their territory, and the time to locate a new road is now; the place, is to run west from Milton or Lock Haven to the coal lands above and beyond Philipsburg There is a large amount of coal that must now pass over the Reading road from Harrisburg. why not have the haul on this from the mines to the mills, over the entire Reading system? This line would reach New Jersey Central. The grades are easy and the cost of building is as nothing compared with some of the schemes now under way."

—A resolution has been offered in the Lock Haven city council to compel the railroad company to place flagmen at the crossings in that city. Such precautions against accident are right. We have a very dangerous crossing in this borough at the Duncan & Hale mill. Some time ago a man was killed at this place, and many parties have made very narrow escapes. It is impossible to see an approaching train going out from the town until it is close upon a passing team on account of the short curve in the road, and it is generally impossible to hear the approaching train on account of the noise in the mill. It is a very dangerous place. A great amount of business is carried on about this crossing and lives will be in danger there until something is done to protect the public, and we do not hesitate to say that the borough government should insist that a flagman should be placed at this point if no where else.

—The 5th regiment, N. G. of Pa., will assemble for inspection at Altoona on Friday, the 26th instant. Company B, in charge of Captain Mullen will be in attendance. By careful drill and practice they can make a creditable showing.

—Mr. M. Tiffin, General Manager of the Bellefonte Car Works, will officiate as auctioneer in person, at the approaching sale of that institution.

—W. H. Vanderbilt will sail for Europe. But people regard him as a doomed man since the attempt on his life and are afraid to sail in his company.

—The Pennsylvania railroad company intend constructing a railroad between Montandon, Northumberland county, and Danville, to connect the Spruce Creek and Tyrone railroad with the North and West Branch railroad.

—For the first time in the history of Lycoming county there will be no sentence day following the criminal court. For this condition of affairs the people of that county owe a debt of gratitude to Judge Cummin. He has been a terror to law breakers and evil doers ever since on the bench.

—Repairs are being made on the new boiler at the water works and new bolts put in. Mr. Rodgers, the consulting engineer, believes that he has discovered the real cause of all the trouble experienced in operating it, and in a short time will put it in complete working condition.

—The Tyrone Herald tells it in this way: "On Saturday, Judge Orvis bought at sheriff's sale, the Orbison interest in Reliance or Enterprise mine, near Osceola. While receiving the congratulations of his friends soon after the sale, some one set it up on the Judge in a letter from the 'Committee,' demanding fifteen cents advance for digging coal."

Signals from Stormstown.

STORMSTOWN, May 5, 1882.

On Tuesday morning, the 2d inst., at ten minutes past 7 o'clock, Mr. Benjamin Leighner departed this life after a short illness of one week. He was born in Stone Valley, Huntingdon county, Pa., February 3, 1803, and was 79 years and 3 months old. He was exceedingly active for a man of his age. A short time before his death he visited his friends in Stone valley, walking the entire distance in a half day. After his return he took sick and in one week his remains were consigned to the tomb. He was a much respected citizen, beloved by all that knew him, always cheerful, generous, kind and forgiving. May he rest in peace.

Two deaths recently occurred at the Low Hill ore mines. One was a child of Mr. Hunter Nicely and the other a child of Mr. James.

Mr. Robert Gray just returned from the city with a tremendous stock of new goods.

Mr. William L. Wilson and Captain Hunter are off on a trip to Pittsburg.

An extensive fire raged on the mountains surrounding this place during the early part of last week, and your readers who never fought fire should try their hands at it if they desire excitement. It also affords a foretaste of the future home of the wicked.

Every place can boast of a boom, and our valley, not to be behind the rest, is having a church building boom. A church edifice will be built in Stormstown during this summer, the necessary money having been subscribed. Arrangements are also being made to erect a church at Fillmore.

The church at Scotia was raised on Thursday, and it proved a genuine picnic day for those in attendance. Those present include about 75 men and boys and 50 ladies, though some of the latter were so dazzlingly beautiful it was difficult to count them. The dinner was excellent and plenty of it, and the way your reporter eat was a caution. People thought he had just ended a 40-days' fast. Among the prominent guests present were Rev. Beyer and A. J. Thompson, Esq., of this place. Mr. John Mattern deserves great credit in connection with this church, as he has been the prime mover in the undertaking. But what is it that John Mattern cannot do? John is a good Republican and would make a first-class commissioner for Centre county.

After dinner I took a walk around the works of the Scotia mines. They are simply immense, and if you want a correct idea of this great enterprise, with its busy machinery in full blast that two years ago was not here and the land lying a barren waste, you will have to send a better reporter than I am. The first object of interest I came to was the digger. It is a great big something standing on very low wheels with an engine and house and a very large crane to which is attached the digger, or scoop, which is square with four short heavy prongs extending out. This scoop is worked ed with heavy cable chains which run over the crane and then back to the engine. When they were down about 25 feet the scoop would begin at the bottom and ascend, drawn by the heavy cable chains over the end of the beam until it was full, when it was swung around by a lever and the bottom drawn out, the contents being emptied in the car, requiring but three minutes to fill a car.

The next place I visited was where they were digging and carting as in ye olden times. Just think of a great basin 35 or 40 feet deep and nearly a half mile in circumference where they are taking out ore in lumps weighing hundreds of pounds. Here there is a tremendous pile of ore beyond human calculation, (that is mine), out ready for shipment. Next came the greatest ingenuity yet of man—the washers. The building is about 40 ft. square and in this are the great shafts full of iron arms revolving constantly. While the ore is emptied from the cars above on the elevated railroad the largest lumps pass out and through a trunk into the car on the main railroad track, while the fine ore passes into the jig house, (if you know what that is). This house is about the same size only it is three stories high, and in it are five elevators which convey the ore up into the screens which are circular and constantly revolving. From this it goes into trunks and descends into the cars on the track below ready to ship. Near to the washer there are two carriers somewhat similar to a straw carrier attached to a threshing machine, but much narrower and of gréater length. They convey the ore up and at each of these are five men and boys who pick the flint out as it passes them. There is a trunk to carry the refuse off that must be nearly or altogether one-fourth of a mile long. In the boiler house are four large boilers to furnish steam for this machinery. To me these washers and jig house were as complicated as a knitting machine. There is other machinery, also engine shops, water tanks, derricks and pumps run by steam that I did not visit. Two years ago there was not a single house at this place. It was called the old River Hill bank. Now the company has room for fifty families, besides stables and offices, and I noticed quite a number of shanties and cabins where men go it frontier like.

The Tyrone, Centre and Spruce Creek R. R. runs to it. I was told they expect to build a station for this very soon. There is a post-office, "Benaire," Adams Express office, two good stores, (one kept by John B. Mattern and the other by James I. Thompson, who also keeps the post-office and the express office. They have one train a day and are shipping over 100 tons of ore per day. They expect to have two trains very soon. Besides the company houses there are a number of other houses belonging to private individuals. Mr. Coleman Winn has charge of these works and Mr. Bullion is financier.

CORPORAL.

A Bugle Note from Pine Grove.

PINE GROVE MILLS, May, 1, 1882.

The citizens of Pine Grove met in the Academy Hall and organized by appointing J. A Koser chairman On motion, G. D. Dannley was chosen secretary.

The chairman stated that the object of the meeting was to protest against the act of our judges in forcing upon us a license to sell liquor in our village contrary to our wishes and a strong remonstrance.

A committee consisting of Dannley, Bailey, Meek and Eckel was appointed to draft resolutions. The committee presented the following, which were read and, upon discussion, adopted as the sentiment of the meeting:

WHEREAS, We, citizens of Pine Grove Mills and vicinity, have earnestly and hopefully protested against the granting of license for the sale of intoxicating beverages in our midst; and

Whereas, Our prayers have been disregarded and our most sanguine hopes blasted by the granting of said license in opposition to the wishes of the people; and

Whereas, At least one of the associate judges, during the campaign of last fall, made pledges and promise to leading politicians of this community who are temperance men to support and protect us in our endeavors to abolish the liquor traffic; therefore

Resolved, That we regard this act on the part of our judges as an outrage upon an upright and Christian community for the following reasons:

That but one of the signers of the application resides within our village, the remaining seventeen representing but a small part of our township, and residing from 1½ to 5 miles distant, and having no interest here whatever, the petition thus showing upon its own face that a licensed house is not wanted at this point.

That the remonstrance against the granting of licenses which was laid before the judges contained fifty-nine signers, embracing almost all the voters of our village and many of best citizens in the community immediately surrounding.

Resolved, that we hereafter and forever refuse to vote for these judges to fill any public position, or any others to succeed them in office, who are not known to be temperance men from principle.

Resolved, That we offer these resolutions setting forth our sentiments for publication in the county papers, and call upon the temperance people throughout the county to co-operate in the future in electing judges who are not in league with the whiskey ring and who will defend us against the Demon of Intoxication.

G. D. DANNLEY, Secretary.

—People of Bellefonte seem to be divided on the question of the expediency and utility of a curb market It is certainly a charming place of resort and a healthful mode of recreation for the ladies on a pleasant morning, to buy cherries ripe as their own red lips, and raspberries and blackberries so luscious and beautiful. The lettuce, too, all sparkling with dew and the rolls of golden butter. It all tastes so much sweeter if only purchased at market. But on the other hand there are various pater familias who say that prices are higher at the curb market and their dear better-halves and darling daughters are cheated by the avaricious venders of produce. We say let those who have anything to sell come to market if they choose, and let the ladies buy if they desire to do so. Let the husband and father rant and rave and tear his hair. It is worth the additional price to see the extra roses blooming in the ladies' cheeks.

—Superintendent Blair has appointed Mr. William Reasner night watchman at the railroad station in this place. The appointment is a commendable one as Mr. R. was so unfortunate as to lose one of his arms some time ago while in the employ of the railroad company. He began his duties last evening at five o'clock.

Legality of Sabbath Subscriptions.

An authoritative legal decision of the question whether subscriptions taken on the Sabbath for the erection of churches, etc., are binding has been rendered at the present session of the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court recently expounded what is usually known as 'The Sunday Law.' and took the ground that the making of such subscriptions is of the nature of a work of charity, and that it creates a valid obligation which may be legally enforced. In the case before the court one of the parties had made such a subscription on the Sabbath day, and at a meeting held in the church, while others were doing the same. Unlike the others, he, however, afterward repudiated the obligation, and refused to pay, on the ground that the contract being made on Sunday was illegal, and the suit was brought against him to enforce the payment. The doctrine of the court is, that subscriptions for church purposes made on the Sabbath day, whether to build churches, or pay ministers, or organists, or sextons, or for any other purpose connected with the benevolent or religious operations of churches, do not come under the category of "worldly employment or business" intended to be forbidden by the statute, but are properly included in "works of charity," which are not prohibited, and hence, that such subscriptions are legal obligations that may be enforced by a court of justice.

Who was He?

The Harrisburg Patriot of Wednesday says: Just before dark last evening while a boy named Gauntz was crossing a field lying to the east of the Pennsylvania railroad office at Rockville he discovered the feet of a man sticking from beneath a quantity of brush. A closer examination revealed the fact that the man was dead.

The lad at once went for assistance and the dead man's condition was fully examined. The body was found to be considerably decomposed, and it was with difficulty that any person could handle it. A bullet hole was found through the head, the ball having entered one of the eyes. Near the body a revolver, partly loaded, was found, and it is supposed that the man committed suicide.

The remains could not be identified up to 1 o'clock this morning. From all appearances the man had been in comfortable circumstances. He had on a dress suit of dark cloth and a brown beaver overcoat. No additional particulars of the affair could be ascertained last night. The coroner was sent for but he was out of the city. An inquest and further investigation of the shooting will take place to-day. The remains are being properly cared for at Rockville.

—The monthly M. E church sociable was held Thursday night and was well attended, notwithstanding the stormy weather. One interesting feature in the exercises was the participation of children and young people belonging to sister churches. The next Methodist Monthly should not forget some favorable mention of their fellow helpers to the truth. A reverend gentleman who was present was very favorably impressed with the gathering and its influences and remarked: "This is a delightful union sociable for the benefit of the Methodist church. It would be quite consistent with the principles of Christianity for all the other churches in town to follow this good example of our Methodist friends."

The New Railroad.

The Malone Brothers, who have secured the contract of building the first twenty miles—commencing at the southern end—of Jersey Shore, Pine Creek and Buffalo railroad, have commenced the erection of shanties at Jersey Shore and its vicinity, for the various requirements during its construction. These twenty miles are to be completed by October 1st. The next contract of thirty-three miles will be let about the middle of this month, with the contract to be fulfilled by the 1st of December.—Lock Haven Journal.

—An exchange puts it this way: 'We won't go so far as to say that we pay no attention to anonymous communications, but it is necessary that a document of this kind should be exceedingly well written, and that it should pertain to a fresh and interesting topic in order to obtain a hearing in this office. We feel sorry for a man who sits down and writes five or six pages on a subject that interests nobody outside of his family, and then forgets to identify himself. Still we have no difficulty in disposing of all our waste paper."

—The Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin prints a list of the delegates instructed for Beaver for Governor and says that so far as is known there are not twenty delegates opposed to Beaver.

Planets in May.

The Providence Journal seems to be the source of much astronomical information. In a recent article on the aspect of the heavens during this month, it describes minutely the positions of the several planets. The article, though interesting to students of astronomy, is too long for publication. The summary contained in the concluding paragraph is as follows:

May is, therefore, a grand gala season among the planets. Into one short month are crowded more important events than those that sometimes illustrate the records of several successive months. The conjunction of the three largest planets of the system with the sun; the conjunction of six planets with each other; the superior conjunctiou of Mercury; the total eclipse of the sun, and the occultation of Jupiter form a brilliant succession of phenomena as imposing to the mental eye as they are beautiful to the physical eye. The grand feature of the month is, however, the number of planets in line with the sun at nearly the same time, and the the marvelous preponderance of planetary attraction pulling upon the sun in one direction. Mercury is the first to drop into the line, Saturn and Neptune follow next, and gigantic Jupiter is the last to join the ranks. The sun is now passing through the maximum of sun-spots. Whether the planets have anything to do with the commotion agitating his surface is something which no astronomer has yet been able to determine. The problem remains to be solved in the astronomy of the future.

Accident on the Railroad.

William Galbraith, a brakeman on the Bald Eagle local freight which leaves this place at 2.35 p. m., was the victim of a serious accident while coupling cars near the depot Friday evening. The train was very late and it was about 6 o'clock when the sad accident occurred. It is thought that he was attempting the dangerous experiment of coupling backward. He was caught between the "bumpers" of the cars, two ribs were broken and one of his hands smashed in a frightful manner. Dr. Harris attended to his injuries. He was taken into the Bush House, where he remained during the night, and was conveyed to his home in Tyrone on the early morning train. It is feared that his injuries are fatal, although there is a possibility of recovery. He has been on the road only a short time.

Hunters, Attention!

We desire to give you a problem to solve. It is not original with us, but it is now puzzling mathematicians and hunters in all parts of the country. Deschner, Wilkinson, Foster, Gross, and all the other mighty Nimrods of this section are requested to send us an answer, and although they may have had the benefit of practical experience, we wager that the answers will not all be the same:

A squirrel is up a tree and a man on the ground with a gun is trying to shoot it; but the squirrel persists in keeping on the opposite side of the tree from the man. The man walks clear around the tree to the place of starting, the squirrel keeping the tree all the time between itself and the man. Now the problem is, "Has the man been around the squirrel?" He has been around the tree with the squirrel on it, but has he been around the squirrel? Simple as this problem seems, about as many people answer it one way as the other. Who will solve it?

May Snow Items.

Large flakes.

They fell on Whippo's straw hat.

March winds and April showers bring forth May snow storms.

The force of employes at the Pennsylvania Railroad Station engaged in a snow-ball battle at 1 p. m. on Saturday.

The comet is approaching near and that is the cause of it. Look for another snow storm in June.

The atmosphere is growing colder and there's no telling how much snow there is yet to fall.

The snow storm effectually dissipated all intentions persons entertained of donning new spring suits on Sunday.

—When the Circus Royal exhibited in Johnstown last week almost the entire audience entered without paying an admission fee and then some of the worst of them stole a side saddle, a riding habit and two trunks from the circus company. Five police, who were on the ground, and the circus company were unable to cope with the crowd. Verily, they do as they please in Johnstown.

—An exchange gives the following directions for finding the comet: 'Late in the evening, say about 11 o'clock, you will see pretty well up in the northern sky the bright star Vega in the harp. It may be clearly recognized by two faint stars close by it, with which it makes a beautiful little triangle."

—Several genuine Indians are now in Milesburg, peddling some beautiful specimens of bead work. They are expected to visit Bellefonte soon. During their visit in this place the Watchman editor will remain indoors with a loaded revolver by his side.
